ABOUT THE NEIGHBORHOOD CITY LIVING IN A COUNTRY SETTING

Glover Park is a small, quaint neighborhood slightly north of bustling Georgetown that shares a backdrop of the United States Observatory, National Cathedral and Number One Observatory Circle, the mansion to the Vice President.

Named for Washingtonian Charles Glover, an influential 19th century banker and philanthropist, he is credited with the creation of Rock Creek Park, Embassy Row and considered the father of the National Zoo.

Side streets are lush, green and adorned with porch-front row-houses built in the 1920's and early 1930's. Easy access to downtown Georgetown makes Glover Park the ideal location for residents and visitors alike. Glover Park has also become home to hundreds of educators, artists and professionals from bordering Georgetown University, American University and Duke Ellington School of the Performing Arts.
